IEEE ISIE 2027

June 30 – July 3, 2027

Sorbonne University International Conference Center

36TH IEEE INTERNATIONAL SYMPOSIUM ON INDUSTRIAL ELECTRONICS

IEEE ISIE 2027 will bring together researchers, engineers, industrial leaders, technology innovators and institutional stakeholders to discuss the next generation of electrified, intelligent, connected and sustainable industrial systems.

As the flagship annual symposium of the IEEE Industrial Electronics Society, ISIE provides an international forum for scientific exchange, technological innovation and collaboration across the full spectrum of industrial electronics.

The 2027 edition will focus on how industrial electronics contributes to two major transformations: the energy transition, driven by electrification and advanced energy conversion, and the digital transition, driven by data, automation, connectivity and resilient cyber-physical systems.

CITY & VENUE

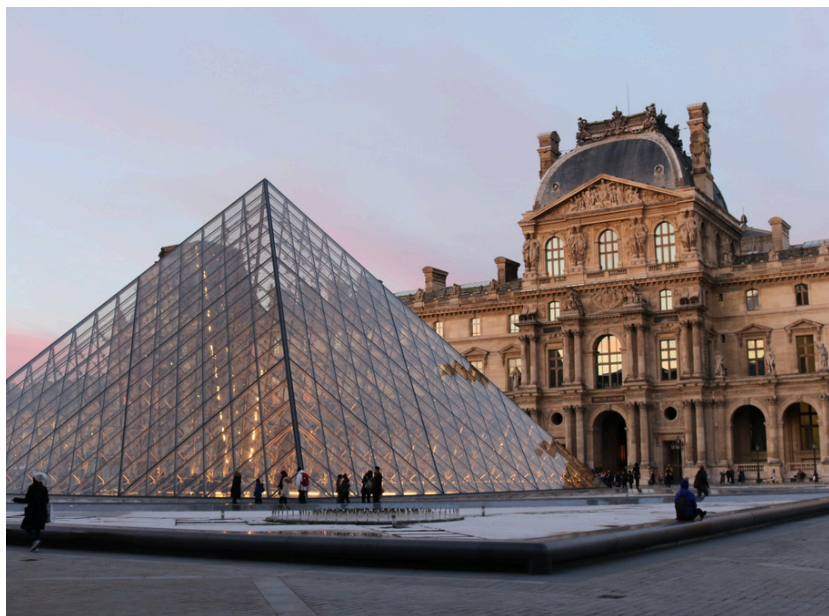

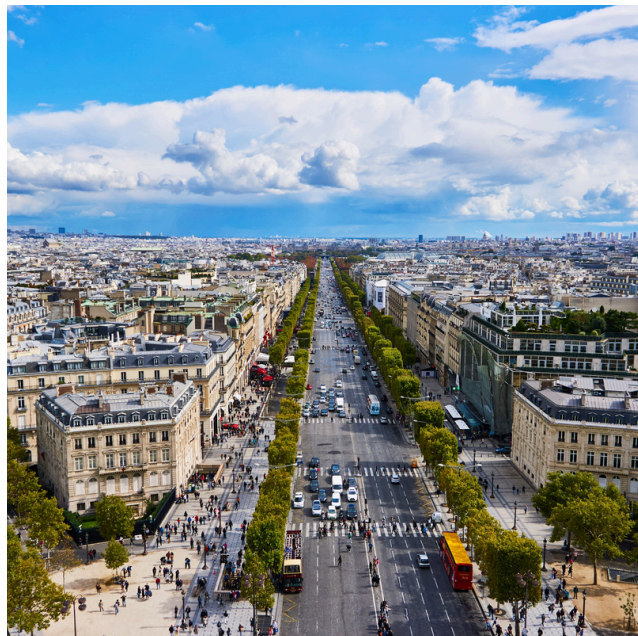

Paris combines scientific prestige, cultural depth and exceptional urban heritage. IEEE ISIE 2027 will take place at the Pierre and Marie Curie Campus of Sorbonne University, in the heart of the Latin Quarter, a district where academic excellence and the history of ideas have shaped the city for centuries.

Beyond the conference itself, participants can explore one of Europe's most remarkable metropolitan environments. Museums, monuments, gardens, bookstores, cafés, concert venues and river walks are all within easy reach of the conference venue.

Arriving one day early or extending your stay by a few days can turn your visit into a richer Paris experience. For official tourism information, please consult Paris je t'aime — Paris Official Tourism.

The Sorbonne University International Conference Center offers a unique combination of academic prestige and modern conference infrastructure. Designed to host large-scale international events, it provides lecture halls, seminar rooms, and networking areas ideally suited for the IEEE ISIE community.

Its central location ensures immediate access to public transportation, accommodation, and major cultural landmarks, making it both highly practical and exceptionally attractive for international participants.
